STATE'S DUTY TO PENN STATE.

Centre County Institution Should be Last to Suffer by Way of Appropriation.

Capitol Hill's financial stringency, it is reported, will work havoc with the appropriation this year, particularly to educational institutions, none of whom is to be given money for new buildings. This ought not to apply to the Commonwealth's own institution, the Pennsylvania State College.

Pennsylvania is without a state university in the sense that the western states have such institutions, but in Penn State the commonwealth has a college which is meeting the popular educational needs of the taxpayers in an even more effective way than many of the nominal state institutions of the west. For that reason Penn State should be a preferred creditor in the distribution of state funds.

The Centre county institution stands alone in the state in not charging tuition. Its student body represents in the main sons of parents who are financially unable to send their children to other colleges or universities It is wholly dependent on state and federal aid for maintenance and in sixty years it has been given only two buildings by private donors and in that time has not been given a dollar of endowment by individuals.

But despite these handicaps, the college has grown tremendously in popular favor and in the number of students. In the last seven years, the total attendance has multiplied three times, even though for the last three years, it has been necessary to limit the number of admissions. More than 200 prospective students have been refused admission each year and solely because of lack of buildings for classrooms, laboratories and other needs.

To continue to refuse to make it possible for its own sons and daughters to obtain the education they seek at Penn State, the Commonwealth and its legislature assume a grave responsibility.

Not only should the state be generous to its educational ward in the matter of new buildings and adequate maintenance funds, but likewise in the matter of extension work. In this the taxpayers reap a direct benefit, the farmers and industrial apprentices particularly. In this great educational movement of taking the college to the people as well as taking the people to the college, Penn State has done a pioneer and remarkably successful work. The state should make it possible to extend and enlarge the benefits.

It is not by chance that Penn State has grown to be an institution with 3 375 students with hundreds more turned away esch year. It is the eloquent evidence of having carried the message to Garcia and the harbinger of the still greater things it can do, if the state government but renders it deserved assistance.

No matter how stringent the state's finances for distribution among educational institutions, the last that should be impaired is the appropriation for Pennsylvania State College.

Bills Signed & Vetoed by Governor.

Governor Brumbaugh vetoed the bill repealing the act to tax traction engines, and in doing so says that the act of 1911 makes these engines subject to taxation.

The governor approved the following bills originating in the house :

Phillips game act for the better protection of game and game birds in the state, endorsed by the state game department and the sportsmen's associations of the state

Bill validating the debt incurred by townships of the second class for road and bridge improvements.

Bill authorizing publication of the report of the commission to revise and amend the penal laws of the state.

Bill making the libellant in an action for divorce a competent witness generally.

Bill extending the powers and duties of the attaches of the forestry, game and fish departments so that they may enforce all laws relating to these departments.

Bill authorizing the forestry department to grow and distribute young forest trees for planting, but not to be sold by the recipient.

The following senate bills were approved by the governor :

Directing the county commissioners to sell to the department of forestry tracts of land that they may have purchased at county treasurer's sales.

Authorizing the judges of courts of common pleas of judicial districts having separate orphans' courts to hear and determine all matters in such courts at the request of the judges thereof.

Amending the act of 1912 authorizing certain corporations to issue preferred stock.

New Home for Aged Odd Fellows.

If the Odd Fellows of the Central Pennsylvania district should be fortunate enough in their endeavors to secure the location of a home for the aged Odd Fellows and wives, they will undoubtedly have it placed at the orphanage grounds, near Sunbury. A concerted effort in that direction is to be made, as the grand lodge means to do away with the Grove City and Philadelphia Old Folks' homes, and establish a centrally located home somewhere around Harrisburg or Sunbury. Efforts are being made to have the home placed west of Shamokin and to have it conducted in connection with the orphans' home.

A special committee is at work on the proposition and will make a report to the grand lodge, when it convenes at Harrisburg next month.

Kill the flies, the dirty, nasty flies.

MILLHEIM'S IMPROVEMENTS.

The Gramley Block Almost Ready for Occupancy—Spigelmeyer a Close Second and Gephart Following.

The completion of the Gramley block in Millheim is the first improvement on the burned site in that thriving borough in lower Penns Valley. The structure is a one-story brick, pretty in design, and convenient in arrangement. The dimensions are 52x112 feet, and arranged to accommodate the postoffice and jewelry store, fronting to the north on Main street, a handsome store room on the corner; a barber shop, a second store room and printing office on west side fronting on Penn street. Each of the rooms has ample light shedding through plate glass show windows extending from the ceiling to the floor Entrance is through massive doors at the side of the several rooms, which arrangement provides for the greatest available space for window frontage. The interior is finished in pine. A heating plant, a vapor system, capable of heating the entire structure, will be installed.

The postoffice and jewelry store will be occupied by Postmaster Stover, who, by the way, is rated by his patrons as an ideal postmaster. The rooms will connect at the rear by a door, otherwise the two rooms are entirely separate. These quarters are decidedly bright and cheery, and will give Millheim a postoffice that will measure up to the requirements of the town.

On the Penn street side is where Guy Springer, the barber, will be located. Mr. Springer is becoming very anxious to occupy his new quarters, and a close observer remarked that one can already notice expansion of chest on the skilled tonsorialist. The room will be handsomely fitted up, and with one proficient in the art conducting the establishment the call of "next" will not suggest torture.

While the Millheim Journal as much as any one institution did its full share of putting Millheim on the map, it has never had a home that a newspaper man of today could point to with pride. The paper is now about to come to its own, and will do so when it occupies the ideal room in the Gramley block The print shop is lighted on three sides, has a fine front, and is especially arranged to accommodate its intended occupant. Mr. Hosterman, the Journal proprietor, will brush up the machinery and equipment, and the Journal patrons may expect a newsier sheet than heretofore, for the editor will have an unobstructed view to all compass points.

On the corner of Main and Penn streets is the entrance to a large store room for which there is a prospective occupant. This room is arranged so that a large portion on the north and west sides is plate glass back of which wares may be displayed to the greatest advantage.

Next to the Gramley block, on Main street, J. Spigelmeyer, former postmaster and merchant, has a store room well under way This structure is 20x50 feet, and will be brick cased Mr Spigelmeyer will open a general store in this room.

Adjoining Mr. Spigelmeyer's building a foundation is being excavated by J. R Gephart for a two story brick structure, 28x54 feet in dimensions. This building will be constructed to accommodate an up-to-date restaurant on the first floor, and the second floor for an appartment. Mr. Gephart held an appointment under Bigelow, but since some time last year has been severed from the State Highway Department.

As a result of the recent fire there yet remains four or five sites on this street to be improved. Undoubtedly in the course of a short time these blackened walls will be rebuilt and substantial private residences will grace them It is only a short time since the disastrous fire, yet Millheim has already well recovered her loss.

Denuding State Lands.

The State Forestry Department is being criticized for cutting timber from land it acquired in various portions of the state. When these lands were purchased, it was generly understood that the state did so to reforestate the hill and mountain sides. The argument was advanced that individuals could not afford to leave timber untouched but that the state could, and that by turning over large tracts to the state, the mountains would, in the course of time, be again covered with heavy growths of timber. It now developes that a system of cutting has already begun, and mills have been installed in the mountains in the vicinity of Colyer, and near Pardee. Everything is cut above eight inches at the butt, and the lumberman knows, as does the man who frequents the woods, that this means that there will be little left after the state's woodsmen leave the forests.

Triple Birthday Celebration.

Saturday, April 24th, marked the birthday celebration of three Centre Hall residents—neighbors—and the event was celebrated by a supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Krape. Mrs. Krape was one of the trio, the other two being Mrs. Mary Rearick and daughter, Miss Savilla. Mrs. Krape prepared the supper and besides those in whose honor the spread was prepared the following were present: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mitterling, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sharer, Prof. and Mrs. W. A. Krise, Mr. and Mrs. William Homan, Mrs. William F. Floray, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Reish, Mrs Milton Snyder, of Centre Hall, and Mrs. George Shook of Penn Hall.

SPRING MILLS HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES CLASS OF TEN.

Grange Hall Filled to Its Capacity---Students Read Essays of Timely and Local Interest---Prof. Marshman Delivers Commencement Address.

In spite of the fact that the weather was very warm, and the farmers were busy, nevertheless a very large and appreciative audience was in attendance upon the commencement exercises of the Spring Mills High School which were held in the Grange Hall of that place, Friday night. The hall was filled to its capacity at the exercises last year, but this year the hall was even more crowded than it was last year, in spite of the fact that it had been considerably enlarged in the meantime. The program showed the results of Prof. W. R. Jones' constant care and attention in the well-prepared essays, in the selection of subjects of timely and local interest, in the conduct of the program, and in the judgment which he displayed in the selection of a speaker.

A brief resume of the program follows. The musical numbers of the program were rendered by the lately organized Spring Mills orchestra, which made its second appearance at that time.

After a simple and brief invocation by the Rev. R. R. Jones of Centre Hall, the first essay was delivered by James Russell Condo. His subject was "The Soils of Gregg Township." The essay showed the care which the young gentleman had so painstakingly bestowed in the collection of data and the correlation of facts. He presented in a simple, straightforward manner the most interesting facts concerning the soils of the township, showing the derivation, composition, and the location of the more important soilbodies of the township. He fixed the districts in mind by naming the farms which were most centrally located in the various soil areas.

Miss Carrie Leoma Heckman was the next speaker on the program. Her subject, "The Dawn of a New Era on the Farm," was most fittingly chosen and well prepared. She set forth the changes in agricultural pursuits and farming districts, which have occurred in the memory of the present generation. These changes have made the farmer more than civilization's drudge, in fact have made him a factor to be reckoned with in the future history of our country. She showed that now it is not the incompetent and unfit for other service that are the farmers of today and tomorrow, but that we are coming to realize that we need a more intellectual type than we have had in order to insure the agricultural prosperity The state and national governments are encouraging all such activities by liberal appropriations and constant effort to improve the social life of the community.

"The Forest Trees of Gregg Township" was the subject of the next essay delivered by Guyer Ward Grove. In this essay the writer gave a short sketch of the forest history of the township and showed the importance of forest preservation. He treated the enemies which the woods owner must combat; the kinds of trees found in the bounds; their protective and commercial importance; and the uses to which their products may be put. The essay was very well written and delivered, showing that the material had been carefully selected and well organized in composition.

"School Days and After," by Ethel Leona Long, was a well written essay that called attention to some of those things that are usually considered of secondary importance, but which are absolutely necessary for a successful career in any line of endeavor—punctuality, obedience to superiors, and persevering application.

Among the sciences, agriculture is probably the oldest, but until recent years there has been no effort to teach it as a science should be taught. This was the key-note of the essay by Leon Russell Grove on "The Teaching of Agriculture in the Public Schools."

Miss Mildred Elizabeth Long delivered the number entitled, "The Country School Marm and Master," in which she gave a brief sketch of the conditions under which the old-fashioned teachers worked and the conditions under which they work today, contrasting the small demands of the past with those of the present; showing how the standards have risen and indicating the lines along which increased efficiency may be sought.

Among the topics that were treated in the various essays was one that commanded special attention; this was "Roads and Rural Social and Community Life," by Harold Edward Stover. In this essay the writer treated the subject of roads from a slightly different viewpoint from that which is usually taken. He showed that the various movements for the improvement of social conditions in the country are of very little avail unless backed by a good roads movement; he showed the relation of good roads to the activity and effectiveness of church and school and to the commercial success of the community.

In a brief essay Miss Cora Aldah McCormick treated the class motto "We Build the Ladder by which we Climb" showing that everything that we do is but one step on the ladder by which one will rise from obscurity to prominence, and that this building process is going on all the time

Walter Stambach Wolfe in the essay entitled "Spring Mills High School Past and Future" gave a history of the school from its founding in 1883 up to the present time, enumerating the men and their period of service, and the general characteristic of each man's services, showing the ideals which they had in mind for the school. He then turned toward the future and listed some of the things that ought to be done in order that the school might live up to its history and realize the dreams of the teachers.

The woman question has vexed man ever since the creation of this article in the year one. This was the position taken by Gladys Gertrude Weagley in her essay "Woman and the Right of Suffrage," which was a strong plea for the support of all equal suffrage activities, giving some of the strongest reasons for the success of the movement in this country, and the reasons why equal suffrage should be extended to the women of the coming generations.

The commencement address was delivered by Professor J. T. Marshman of the department of public speaking of State College. His message might be boiled down to two words: "Men Wanted." He went on to show that there always has been a greater demand for men than the supply; that men in the true sense of the word were very scarce articles and that it requires a great deal of care on the part of the boy or girl in order that they may grow up to be real men and real women. He showed that this was possible only when the individual was symmetrically developed; that is, a strong body, a sound mind, both controlled by a noble soul. That there are individuals who have reached a certain stage of success without all three of these is true, but they are the exceptions and not the rule. It was a message that will long be remembered and that will have an influence on the community.

In a few brief remarks after the commencement address, Prof. W. R. Jones, the principal of the high school, presented the diplomas to the class. Prof. Jones is to be congratulated on the success of the past two years and in congratulating him one must not overlook the always evident loyal support of the parents and patrons of the school.

Rev. W. H. Williams of the M. E. church of Spring Mills closed the session with prayer and the benediction. Thus ended the second annual commencement exercises of the Spring Mills High School.

Next I. O. O. F. Celebration at Bellefonte.

Bellefonte was chosen as the place for holding the ninety-seventh anniversary celebration of the Odd Fellows Association, at the celebration at Bloomsburg last Friday. The exact date has not been set.

Already we hear, "Is it hot enough for you?" Ninety-three in the shade on Sunday afternoon brought forth a "yes, plenty" on the above inquiry.

Scott Disappointed Home Residents.

A dispatch from Philipsburg to the Sunday North American says :

Though not unexpected, the vote of Harry B. Scott, of this place, representative from Centre county in the legislature, against the Williams local option bill, was a keen disappointment to a majority of the residents of his home town Hundreds of Republicans here and elsewhere in the county who voted the party ticket last fall have been upholding Governor Brumbaugh. Prevailing sentiment here has been unmistakably in favor of the bill.

Along about the time Senator Penrose visited Philipsburg early last year the ambition to become an assemblyman seized Mr. Scott. He evaded committing himself on local option during the campaign. It is said he has further political ambitions, but if this is so they are not likely to be gratified.

Deaths of Centre Countians.

Mrs. Alice R. Emerick, in Walker township, aged sixty-five years.

Mrs. Mollie P. Shirk, at Bellefonte, of a complication of diseases, aged fifty-seven years.

Roy M. Vonada, at Zion, of spinal meningitis, aged twelve years.

Samuel Sheffer, at Bellefonte, of a complication of diseases, aged seventy-three years.

Irvin T. Delaney, a well known resident of Milesburg, died while sitting in his chair. He was aged seventy-five years.

BOALSBURG'S COMMENCEMENT.

Wednesday, May 5th, Time Set for Exercises—Three in Class.

Boalsburg's high school commencement exercises will be held Wednesday evening of next week, May 5th, in the Reformed church. A class of three—all girls—will graduate at this time. Miss Margaretta Goheen is principal of the school. Following is the program for commencement evening :

Rebersburg Horse Sale.

The horse sale at Rebersburg, conducted by J. W. Allgirl, and held Friday, was not as largely attended as the majority of sales of that kind held there, at Millheim, or Centre Hall. Most of those who made up the bidders and spectators were from the immediate locality where the sale was held, with a sprinkling of men interested in horse flesh from surrounding points.

The twenty horses offered were recommended by the owner as having been purchased in Northern Ohio. Some of them were nice clean animals, and others were under size. On the former bids were readily made, yet the knock down price made the owner shiver. Just one-half of the twenty animals offered were sold. The prices and purchasers are named below.

Joseph Gummo	$202.50
George Gingerich	190.00
Edward Bierly (team)	450.00
Thomas Fox (team)	412.50
John Klinefelter	100.00
Lloyd Walker	80.00
Roy Swartz	150.00
James H. McCool	134.00

The good people of Brush Valley are encouraging the building up of a horse market in the metropolis of their valley, and are profuse in the invitations to those around the block to "come back" to future similar occasions as well as at all times. The sale was held at the local hotel, and Landlord Long was busy giving unstinted praise to the horse-owner and at the same time selling pins for Long's benefit.

Finds San Jose Scale Parasites Plentiful.

Mr. S. W. Smith,
Centre Hall, Pa.

Dear Sir :

Among a considerable number of cuttings infested by San Jose Scale, more or less of which has been destroyed by parasites, and which were forwarded to this office by our Mr. Foster, was one cutting which he states came from near your farm and that you are anxious to know what the parasites have done. I have examined this cutting and find that about two or three per cent. of the scale insects have been destroyed by the parasites. Generally speaking, parasites become most numerous where there is most available food in the form of the San Jose Scale. The particular cuttings in question, although fairly badly infested by Scale, would not be considered anideal place for parasites for the reason that the scale is very much scattered and most of it is old. I can say, however, that much of the material which Mr. Foster has recently been sending to us shows that the parasites were very active in your region last fall, and I am of the opinion that these insects will continue to spread over this country and to do very efficient work.

Very truly yours,
H. A SURFACE,
Economic Zoologist.

Pleasant Gap Postmaster Taken.

George Coble, the recent postmaster at Pleasant Gap, who absconded with several hundred dollars of Uncle Sam's cash, several months ago, was arrested by federal authorities in Newark, New Jersey, last week. Postoffice inspectors traced Coble to Newark through information received from a woman in California. Since disappearing from Pleasant Gap he has been in Canada and the Bermuda Islands, finally going to Newark. Photographs found in his trunk by postal inspectors bore the names and addresses of girl friends in Canada and California. These names and addresses were verified by postal inspectors at those places and letters to and from the girls were examined. Coble had written to them at various times and finally a letter from him to a girl in California revealed that he was in Newark. His arrest followed.

A United States marshal appeared in Pleasant Gap last week to subpoena Leslie Miller to appear against Coble at a hearing.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS

The Pink Label this week. There should be a "6" on it.

If you want the fly population to be less this year than last, begin the "swatting 'em" early.

James Keller, son of Mr. and Mrs. David K. Keller, spent a few days at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Frank Fisher, at Penn Hall.

Harry J. Cohen, in charge of the victrola-piano department of Claster's store, Bellefonte, was in Centre Hall Thursday of last week.

Mrs. Mary Shoop returned home last week after having spent several weeks with friends and relatives in the eastern part of the state.

The directors of the Patrons Rural Telephone Company will meet in Bellefonte, Thursday, May 13th. Important business will come before the body.

If you want to buy or want to sell, consult the advertisements in the Centre Reporter. The man who goes before the people in a paid advertisement always has something worth looking into.

Last year April was so wet that it was difficult to do farm work, but this spring it is different—April being an ideal month for all kinds of out-door work. The showers that come along once in a while are rather light.

The restoration of public speaking, which he terms "the lost art," is advocated by Dr. Edwin Earle Sparks, president of State College. Dr. Sparks is taking this subject as the theme of addresses before many trade organizations of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Simpkins and children of Altoona, traveling in their Overland automobile, spent a day last week with the latter's uncle, Perry Krise, at Spring Mills and on their way through Centre Hall stopped at the home of Prof. and Mrs. W. A. Krise.

While most farmers are looking solicitiously upon their wheat fields, Robert Bloom is boasting of the fine appearance of his fields. While his acreage is not so large as that of many farmers he feels that when the grain is threshed the yield will be equal to that of fields many acres larger.

The stork has been unusually busy during the month of April and besides adding to the borough's population, added two to Potter township recently. Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Brooks and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Brooks are taking good care of two young farmers that came to brighten their homes.

Brush Valley, one of the best agricultural sections in Centre county, is somewhat tabooed by the appearance of the grain fields. The condition is not to the liking of the farmer as a whole, not so much because they care that the net returns will be less than the average, but rather for the wounded pride.

A colt with five legs was born on the farm of William Mayes, of Beech Creek. The extra leg was perfectly formed and united to the left foreleg. It interfered with the traveling of the colt, so a veterinary surgeon amputated the extra leg, and the colt is getting along all right and promises to develop into a valuable horse.

The commencement exercises at Spring Mills attracted a number of the young people from Centre Hall, among them being the following: Esther Parson, Mae and Marion Royer, Carrie, Ida and Elizabeth Sweetwood, Mary Delinda Potter, Carribel Emerick, Lillian Emery, Mary Whiteman Grace Horner, James Sweetwood, James Keller, Warren Homan, Ralph Luse, Ralph Homan, Dwight Foss, Sumner Packer, William Bailey.

This immediate section was represented at the Millheim horse sale by H. C. Shirk, the implement dealer; J. W. Mitterling, the man just now put out of business by the foot and mouth disease; John E. Noll, the man who so successfully conducts the Red Mill; James H. McCool, farmer, the only man in the bunch that really helped to make the horses sell higher on the block; S. C. Brungart, the Krit man, who wouldn't care if every man who wanted an automobile would sign up a contract with him; and the writer, who is telling this to half the world.

The members of the junior class of State College, purely in the interests of reducing the cost of their education, have announced their decision this year to substitute a smoker in the college armory for the annual class dinner. In former years the class traveled to Pittsburgh, Washington, Harrisburg or Williamsport for banquets at $3.00 a plate,—total anywhere from $8 00 up,—while the smoker is a matter merely of fifty cents for each individual. Their actual enjoyment will be all the more keen because of the good sense displayed.

GERMANS DRIVE AGAINST ALLIES

Great Effort to Break Through to Calais.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM GAINS

The French Insist That Allies' Counter-Attacks Continue With Success and That British Are Holding Their Own.

London.—The German rushes in Flanders and the Woevre, where they claim to have had considerable success, are believed to be the forerunners of another big effort to break through the allied lines in the west.

For many days Belgium has been sealed from the observation of neutrals while reinforcements from Germany were being moved to the south to take part in the new offensive which they hope is to carry them to Calais and possibly break the resistance of the Allies.

The attack in Flanders, originally levelled at the French, has been transferred to the British lines held by the Canadians on the immediate right of the French, and here for two days the men from the Dominion have been engaged in a deadly contest with the Germans.

The latter state in their official report that they have made further progress toward Ypres and that the British counter-attacks have been repulsed.

British Hold Positions.

The French account, on the other hand, declares that the Allies' counter-attacks continue with success and that the British hold all their positions, and repeats the charge that the Germans are using bombs containing asphyxiating gases.

The German attack in the Woevre or in the Meuse Hills was directed against the French positions to the southwest of Combres, and, according to the Berlin statement, the French suffered a heavy defeat. Paris, however, says that in a counter-attack the Germans were completely driven out of the French first line, which they had pushed back.

These offensive movements by the Germans have been made possible by the state of the ground on the eastern front, where operations are vitually impossible until the spring floods have subsided.

Taking advantage of these conditions the German General Staff transferred a large number of troops to the west to make another big effort, which shows that they are not content to rely on a passive policy.

A New German Army.

It is believed that a half million new German troops have reached Flanders and that more guns and material are to be used than were provided for the original attempts to destroy the allied armies in the west—attempts which met with failure both in August and in October.

With 750,000 men on the Continent, as announced recently by the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, reinforcements have doubtless been hurried forward to fill the gaps in the British lines.

In one of its infrequent bulletins the Belgian Legation at London announces that the town of Lizerne, west of the Ypres Canal, which was captured by the Germans on Friday night, has been retaken by the French and Belgian troops, and that the Belgian artillery has been engaged in a duel with the German batteries the whole length of the Belgian front.

In the meantime the eastern front is enjoying a period of comparative calm except in the mid-Carpathians, where the Russians continue to attack the Austrians in Uzsok Pass, and to the eastward, where the Austrians and Germans are trying to crush the Russian flank. Both sides report successes.

Italy, Greece, Roumania.

Italy and Greece continue to debate what steps, if any, they will take, and Roumania, it is believed, waits on Italy's decision.

Greece, too, is considering terms which, however, come from the Allies, and Athens is torn by divided opinion.

TOWER BACKS GERMANY.

Former U. S. Ambassador Declares Invasion Of Belgium Justified.

Philadelphia.—Germany's invasion of Belgium at the outbreak of the European war was justified by Charlemagne Tower, formerly Ambassador to Germany and to Russia, in an address delivered before the American Philosophical Society. Quoting English statesmen and citing principles of international law, Mr. Tower said that Great Britain, as well as Germany, regarded the agreement of 1839, guaranteeing Belgium's neutrality, as a mere "scrap of paper."

GERMANS TWIST BRITISH NAVY.

Their Fleet, Out Repeatedly, Met No Enemy.

Berlin, via London.—The German Admiralty gave out a statement reading as follows: "The German high sea fleet has recently cruised repeatedly in the North Sea, advancing into English water without meeting the sea forces of Great Britain."

FRIGHTFUL SCENES IN BATTLE OF AILLY

Batteries Fire 20,000 Shells in Ninety Minutes.

SOLDIERS ARE DRIVEN MAD

Every Inch Of Ground Turned Up By Explosives and Strewn With Corpses—Mine Explosion Slaughter.

Paris.—An official eye-witness describing the operations by which the French are menacing the German positions in the wedge of St. Mihiel says:

"All the Ailly woods, which constituted a strong and well-fortified support for the Germans, is now entirely in French hands, conquered for the most part by troops from the center of France after several days of systematic preparations by a heavy fire from three-inch and big guns and by aerial torpedoes.

"At certain points the Germans had constructed in front of moats 12 yards wide spiked barriers extending about six feet above the level of the earth, surrounded by barbed wire entanglements, which were so intricate as to make them impervious to any tools.

"A concentration of artillery fire opened large breaches in this defense; parapets were sent crashing to the ground and dismembered bodies were blown into the air above the clouds of smoke. The earth was strewn with overturned trees and branches.

Panic In the Trenches.

"After five hours of intense fire, five mines, laid under a parapet adjacent to the principal fort holding the position, exploded, annihilating the garrison and spreading panic in the trenches.

"An attack with fixed bayonets then began in three lines, preceded by a detachment with hand grenades. Engineers followed with little bridges, which had been prepared in advance, to facilitate the passage over the network of trenches.

"The order has been given not to stop in any trench, but to pass over and take the enemy in the rear.

"Three lines of trenches were thus cleared of the Germans. Those who sought refuge in the underground shelters perished from suffocation through the collapse of the entire earthworks.

"Toward 3 o'clock on April 5 the enemy attempted to counter-attack, supported by a heavy artillery fire, which was neutralized by our batteries. Our attack was renewed the following day and developed in a furious hand-to-hand struggle with grenades and cold steel in the narrow lines of trenches.

"The enemy offered such resistance that the order was given to evacuate part of the ground that had been gained. This was then bombarded until the enemy was obliged to retire. We then held the three main line trenches of the Ailly woods.

Dead Piled In Rows.

"The enemy's losses were heavy. We counted 200 dead on the evening of the fifth, and on the evening of the sixth we found the dead piled in three rows.

"During the seventh and eighth we repulsed eight counter-attacks. The enemy succeeded in entering one trench, but was unable to hold it. Of the Ailly woods, there remained nothing but a few hacked trunks, and not an inch of ground in it that had not been turned up by explosives.

"In the strange choas, stones, corpses and a debris of limbs lay mingled.

"At 5.30 o'clock on April 8 an intensive bombardment by the Germans was begun. In 90 minutes upon this corner of the woods, over a front of from 350 to 400 yards deep, 20,000 shells were fired; they included all calibers, from four to eight inch. The entire hill disappeared in a cloud of smoke.

"All communications were cut during this time, and when the fire ceased many men were mentally deranged. They had to be removed, and required several days for recovery.

"Again on April 10 the position in Ailly woods was subjected to a bombardment. Six German companies, besides the garrison in the fort, were annihilated in these engagements."

Twenty French Generals Killed.

Pasis—Tout Paris, a social register of the French capital, pust issued, contains the names of 1,500 Parisians killed on the battlefield up to February 25, 1915.

Included in this number are the names of 20 generals, 367 other officers, 14 priests and 193 titled members of the aristocracy.

TURK DESTROYERS BLOWN UP.

Out Cruising When Russians Laid Mine Belt.

Paris.—Two Turkish torpedo-boat destroyers were blown up, says a Saloniki dispatch, while passing through a mine belt which Russian ships had succeeded in laying across the entrance to the Bosporus while the Turkish fleet was cruising in the Black Sea. The explosions caused by the destruction of the two Turkish boats gave warning to the remainder of the fleet.

VILLA STILL IN THE WAR GAME

Is Preparing for Another Battle With Obregon.

WAS SHORT OF AMMUNITION

Indications That Villa Plans To Concentrate His Scattered Forces For a Supreme Effort To Defeat Obregon.

Washington.—Consular dispatches received by the Washington government from various points in Mexico indicate that while temporarily disorganized by the defeat sustained at Celaya, General Villa and his forces have by no means been removed as a formidable factor in Mexico's civil war.

Officials at the State Department are guarding closely the reports received from consuls in the territory occupied by General Villa, as it is not desired to give out military information, but it is known that plans for another battle with General Obregon, the Carranza commander, are proceeding rapidly.

Villa's chief difficulty, it was learned officially, is his lack of ammunition, and until he replenishes his supply he probably will not risk engagement. When he met Obregon at Celaya, Villa had sent forces to attack Matamoras, Nuevo Laredo, Tampico and West Coast towns, greatly depleting his main force. Indications now are that he intends to concentrate all these forces in Central Mexico for another supreme effort against Obregon.

The Carranza forces are reported to be well supplied with ammunition and pressing the Villa army closely north of Irapuato. Carranza officials here claim the Villa movement has been given a crushing blow, from which it never will recover.

In the meantime many rumors of counter revolutionary movements mave been current, though they are not credited by the American government. Many former sympathizers of Huerta have been in Washington, but most of them deny that Huerta intends to take the field again. Manuel Calero, former ambassador to Washington under the Madero administration, visited the Argentine and Chilean ambassadors, discussing the Mexican situation in general. It was said his visit was without significance.

Dispatches from Vera Cruz to the Carranza agency here said General Obregon had reached a point 12 miles north of Irapuato and still was pursuing Villa with an army of 40,000, including General Mergul's command. General Dieguez, the dispatches said, had taken Guadalajara and would act as Obregon's rear guard. Villa losses at Celaya were estimated at 6,000 killed and 5,000 missing.

Nogales, Ariz.—Nogales, Sonora, opposite here, has been made the new Villa capital of Sonora, instead of Hermosillo.

SHOOTS TWO; KILLS HIMSELF.

Hunter Thought Couple Bested Him In Hotel Deal.

Los Angeles.—William Hunter, 49 years old, who came here recently from Hartford, Conn., shot and seriously wounded Mr. and Mrs. Beachey F. Crampton at a hotel here and then committed suicide. Hunter had purchased the lease of the hotel from the Cramptons a week ago and was dissatisfied with the deal. The Cramptons may recover.

CRIPPLES IN A WRECK.

'Bus In Which They Were Being Taken To School Runs Into Car.

Cleveland, O. — Eleven deformed children, on their way to a school for cripples, were injured, three of them fatally, when the 'bus in which they were riding was struck by a street car here. The attendant to the driver of the rig, Hezekiah Finn, 72; was also badly hurt and may die.

BRYAN'S REPLY TO BERNSTORFF NOTE

Reflection on Our Good Faith is Resented.

INTERNATIONAL LAW LESSON

In Diplomatic Language the President Makes Evident His Intention To Reprimand the German Ambassador.

Washington.—The United States Government replied to the recent memorandum in which Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, declared that "if the American people desire to observe true neutrality, they will find means to stop the exclusive importation of arms to one side, or at least to use this export trade as a means to uphold the legitimate trade with Germany, especially the trade in foodstuffs."

The American note, which is signed by Secretary Bryan, was drafted at the State Department, but was finally penned by President Wilson himself. After pointing out that the language used by Count von Bernstorff is susceptible of being construed as impugning the good faith of the United States in the performance of its duties as a neutral," the note "takes it for granted that no such implication was intended," and suggests that evidently the German Ambassador is laboring under certain false impressions."

It is then declared that while the relations of the United States with any one of the belligerents "cannot wisely be made a subject of discussion with a third government," such correspondence between the United States and the Allies as has been published shows "the steadfast refusal" of the American government "to acknowledge the right of any belligerent to alter the accepted rules of war at sea insofar as they effect the rights and interests of neutrals."

The attitude of the United States on the question of exportations of arms is restated—namely, that to place any embargo on arms during the progress of a war would be "a direct violation of the neutrality of the United States. The note refers to the spirit of friendship which the United States desires always to manifest toward Germany and its people, and concludes with the declaration that the neutrality of the United States is found on the firm basis of conscience and good will."

TRAPPED BY GIRL'S LETTER.

Ambrose Morrison, Alleged Auto Bandit, Arrested.

New York.—Lured into the hands of the law by a letter from a young girl friend, Ambrose Morrison, wanted by the police of New York, Washington and other Eastern cities, is in the hands of the police here. Morrison was arrested in Boston and brought here to face a charge of being one of the auto bandits who obtained $10,000 in cash and jewels from the home of Mrs. Clementine Rossi, in Brooklyn. He is said to be wanted in Washington for a safe robbery and in Paterson, N. J., for the attempted robbery of a jewelry store. He was arrested in the Boston general postoffice by a detective who had trailed the letter he went to claim.

PICKS WILSON FOR BIG ROLE.

Paris Temps Pleased With President's Speech.

Paris.—The newspapers of Paris comment with approval on the utterances of President Wilson in regard to the relations of the United States with the belligerent nations in his speech at the luncheon of the Associated Press in New York on April 20. The Temps alludes to the speech as an indication that President Wilson is prepared for an important role in the future and says that his position is one which justifies the confidence of all interests. It affirms that the President "has given proof of the noble consciousness of his duty as a statesman."

WILSON TO SEE FLEET MAY 17

Review to Take Place In New York Harbor.

WATER CARNIVAL PLANNED

Blue Jackets and Marines To March Through Fifth Avenue With Army Troops From Governor's Island and Militia.

Washington.—The Atlantic fleet will be reviewed in New York Harbor, May 17, by President Wilson, Secretary Daniels announced the date at the conclusion of conferences with Admiral Fletcher, commander-in-chief of the fleet.

Details of the review and of events ashore will be worked out as soon as possible by the Navy Department, in co-operation with Mayor Mitchel, of New York. The review will be followed by a water carnival at night, and a land parade probably the next day, May 18. Bluejackets and marines from the fleet will march through Fifth avenue with Army troops from Governor's Island, the New York National Guard and other organizations yet to be determined.

The exact number of war craft to be assembled at New York has not yet been decided, but practically all of the battleships, many of the cruisers, gunboats and destroyers attached to the fleet and some of the submarines and auxiliaries will be ordered out. The review will be the first held since October, 1912.

It is now planned to have the fleet complete target practice at Tangier Sound by May 5 or 6 and leave about the 8th for Norfolk. The bluejackets and marines will be given a week's shore leave there from May 9 to 16. The submarines to be brought up for the parade will reach New York May 10.

The review and parade ashore over the fleet will pass out of New York harbor not later than May 20 for Narraganset Bay for 10 days' maneuvers, with Newport as a base. Between June 1 and 21 the vessels will go to their home yards for docking, supplies and steaming trials. The next rendezvous will be in Hampton Roads soon after June 21, and not later than June 25 the fleet will steam out of the roads for San Francisco by way of the Panama Canal. Maneuvering en route, the ships, it is expected, will pass through the Canal July 4.

The personnel of the reviewing party at New York, headed by President Wilson, will be decided later by Secretary Daniels and his aids. It probably will include several cabinet officers, members of the two houses of Congress, including the New York State and municipal authorities. The European war probably will result in the absence of many of the diplomatic representatives of foreign powers, usually present at such affairs.

Mr. Daniels also discussed with the President the formal opening of the Panama Canal in July. The President said it would be absolutely impossible for him to be present at the ceremony.

WOMEN SOLD VOTES.

Two In Paris, Ill., Confess—Alleged Buyers Arrested.

Paris, Ill.—H. Clay Moss and Mrs. Hattie O'Neil, who were arrested here on the charge of buying votes at the city election, were released on bond. Hearing of their cases was set for next week before Justice V. V. Raridin. Vigorous denial was made by both Moss and Mrs. O'Neil, who claim they do not know Miss Flora Dawson and Miss Hattie Franklin, who charge they were paid $3 each for voting. The commission form of government ticket, headed by Dr. W. H. Hoff and four commissioners, indorsed by the citizens' committee, was elected by a large plurality.

WOMEN DISFIGURE GIRL.

Burn Cheeks With Acid After Refusal To Give $1,000.

Connellsville, Pa.—Martha Schultz, the 15-year-old daughter of a well-to-do farmer, was attacked by two masked women near a coke plant in the outskirts of Connellsville. One of the women held Miss Schultz while the other pressed on each cheek the uncorked neck of a bottle filled with acid. Her face was badly burned and she was then allowed to go. Several weeks ago Miss Schultz received a letter ordering her to place $1,000 and a gold watch in a secluded spot. She ignored the letter.

ELEVEN TOWNS GO DRY.

Only One County In Illinois Now Entirely Wet.

Chicago.—Results of local option elections in 26 towns and villages of Illinois were claimed as a victory by Anti-Saloon leaders. Eleven towns went in the "dry" column, abolishing about 80 saloons, and all previously "dry" territory was retained. Figures provided by the Anti-Saloon League, showed that there are now 55 entirely "dry" counties in the State, 46 partially "dry" and one—Monroe county—entirely wet. Seventy county seats are "dry," while 32 remain wet.

STATE LAW MAKERS

For a "Live" Farm Board.

Harrisburg.—The proposed State Agricultural Commission, provided for in the Whitaker bill now pending in the House, is to be a real live board to be chosen with regard to geographical location and to work out State-wide problems, says Governor Brumbaugh. The Governor has been meeting all the agricultural and other interests back of the bill. "I consider agriculture of the greatest importance and I intend to put representative men on the commission. They will be chosen with regard to their residence and be expected to attend meetings held in their territory. They will ascertain the sentiment and conditions and then come to the board and work out problems. These men should be leaders in the agricultural development," said the Governor. "I do not intend the commission to be a mere advisory board, but a working body. They should work out problems of transportation of food products to the markets, educate farmers to the importance of by-products, because now too many men devote time to grain and fruit and do not realize that great value of hogs, poultry and things like that; work out a plan for uniformity in handling products, fruits, for instance, because we know that this State produces some of the finest flavored apples and peaches, and yet fruits from other States come here more attractively packed and displayed and have a ready sale when they cannot touch ours for quality; plan for the utilization of hill-sides and idle lands, emphasizing the importance of the conservation of the soil and prevention of erosion; encourage the raising of cattle and hogs, because I think Pennsylvania has plenty of land and is losing some opportunities, and also to work for extension of sheep raising. This State ought to take a greater place in agriculture, and it can, with intelligent and energetic efforts. I believe agriculture can be made not only attractive but more profitable."

Governor Signs Bills.

Harrisburg. — Announcement was made by Governor Brumbaugh of approval of nine Senate bills and seven House bills and veto of one House bill. In addition to the new game bill the following were approved:

Senate:—Empowering magistrates in first-class cities to release on bail any person committed by another magistrate.

Extending to mothers the rights now held by fathers to appoint guardians in certain cases.

Giving State Forestry Department right to purchase lands offered for sale for unpaid county taxes.

Requiring magistrates to file acceptances of office with prothonotaries.

Authorizing Common Pleas Judges in districts having separate. Orphans' Courts to hear and determine all matters in such courts at request of judges.

Amending third-class city Act so that members of school boards cannot serve as members of City Council.

Regulating issuance of preferred stock.

Authorizing J. P. Swearingen, of Greene Township, Beaver county, to sue the State for damages for injury to his son on a State highway.

Authorizing G. F. Pawling, Philadelphia, to sue the State on a contract for the sun parlor at the Harrisburg State Hospital.

House:—Validating debts of second-class townships for road improvements.

Authorizing publication of report of penal laws commission.

Amending divorce laws so that libellant shall be a competent witness.

Requiring foresters, forest rangers, game protectors, deputies, fish wardens to enforce all fish, game and forestry laws.

Authorizing clerks to prothonotaries in Luzerne county to administer oaths.

Authorizing Department of Forestry to distribute young trees.

The Governor vetoed the House bill to repeal the act of 1911, providing for assessment of traction engines as personal property. The Governor says "this bill proposes to exempt from taxation traction engines. The Act of 1911, P. L. 542, makes these subjects of taxation. These engines use our highways and are as much a subject of taxation as a horse or any other personal property."

Appropriation Bills Reported.

Harrisburg. — Sixty appropriation bills, carrying the money recommended by the House Appropriations Committee for educational institutions, State and semi-State institutions, hospitals, homes, sanitoria and for the State Armory Board, support of the militia, Lake Erie-Ohio Ship Canal and maintenance of indigent insane were reported to the House. Last week over 225 appropriation bills were reported out. The State College appropriation and a number of other bills are to be acted upon this week, while about 200 are held for future determination according to the revenue in sight.

HIS LOVE STORY

SYNOPSIS.

Le Comte de Sabron, captain of French cavalry, takes to his quarters to raise by hand a motherless Irish terrier pup, and names it Pitchoune. He dines with the Marquise d'Esclignac and meets Miss Julia Redmond, American heiress, who sings for him an English ballad that lingers in his memory. Trying to save Pitchoune's life, he declines a second invitation to dinner because of a "very sick friend." No more invitations come from the Chateau d'Esclignac. Pitchoune, though lame from his accident, thrives and is devoted to his master. Sabron and Pitchoune meet the Marquise and Miss Redmond and after the story of Pitchoune is told Sabron is forgiven and invited to dinner again. Sabron is ordered to Algiers, but is not allowed to take servants or dogs. He is invited to a musicale at the Chateau, where Miss Redmond, hearing that Sabron cannot take Pitchoune with him, offers to take care of the dog during his master's absence.

"My dear Julia, my godson, the Duc de Tremont." And Sabron bowed to both the ladies, to the duke, and went away.

This was the picture he might add to his collection: the older woman in her vivid dress, Julia in her simpler gown, and the titled Frenchman bowing over her hand.

When he went out to the front terrace Brunet was there with his horse, and Pitchoune was there as well, stiffly waiting at attention.

"Brunet," said the officer to his man, "will you take Pitchoune around to the servants' quarters and give him to Miss Redmond's maid? I am going to leave him here."

"Good, mon Capitaine," said the ordonnance, and whistled to the dog.

Pitchoune sprang toward his master with a short sharp bark. What he understood would be hard to say, but all that he wanted to do was to remain with Sabron. Sabron bent down and stroked him.

"Go, my friend, with Brunet. Go, mon vieux, go," he commanded sternly, and the little dog, trained to obedience as a soldier's dog should be, trotted reluctantly at the heels of the ordonnance, and the soldier threw his leg over the saddle and rode away. He rode regardless of anything but the fact that he was going.

CHAPTER VIII.

Homesick.

Pitchoune was a soldier's dog, born in a stable, of a mother who had been dear to the canteen. Michette had been une vraie vivandiere, a real daughter of the regiment.

Pitchoune was a worthy son. He adored the drums and trumpets. He adored the fife. He adored the drills which he was accustomed to watch from a respectable distance. He liked Brunet, and the word had not yet been discovered which would express how he felt toward Monsieur le Capitaine, his master. His muscular little form expressed it in every fiber. His brown eyes looked it until their pathos might have melted a heart of iron.

There was nothing picturesque to Pitchoune in the Chateau d'Esclignac or in the charming room to which he was brought. The little dog took a flying tour around it, over sofas and chairs, landing on the window-seat, where he crouched. He was not wicked, but he was perfectly miserable, and the lovely wiles of Julia Redmond and her endearments left him unmoved. He refused meat and drink, was indifferent to the views from the window, to the beautiful view of King Rene's castle, to the tantalizing cat sunning herself against the wall. He flew about like mad, leaving destruction in his wake, tugged at the leash when they took him out for exercise. In short, Pitchoune was a homesick, lovesick little dog, and thereby endeared himself more than ever to his new mistress. She tied a ribbon around his neck, which he promptly chewed off. She tried to feed him with her own fair hands; he held his head high, looked bored and grew thin in the flanks.

"I think Captain de Sabron's little dog is going to die, ma tante," she told her aunt.

"Fiddlesticks, my dear Julia! Keep him tied up until he is accustomed to the place. It won't hurt him to fast; he will eat when he is hungry. I have a note from Robert. He has gone to Monte Carlo."

"Ah!" breathed Miss Redmond indifferently.

She slowly went over to her piano and played a few measures of music that were a torture to Pitchoune, who found these ladylike performances in strong contrast to drums and trumpets. He felt himself as a soldier degraded and could not understand why he should be relegated to a salon and to the mild society of two ladies who did not even know how to pull his ears or roll him over on the rug with their riding boots and spurs. He sat against the window as was his habit, looking watching, yearning.

"Vous avez tort, ma chere," said her aunt, who was working something less than a thousand flowers on her tapestry. "The chance to be a princess and a Tremont does not come twice in a young girl's life, and you know you have only to be reasonable, Julia."

Miss Redmond's fingers wandered, magnetically drawn by her thoughts, into a song which she played softly through. Pitchoune heard and turned his beautiful head and his soft eyes to her. He knew that tune. Neither drums nor trumpets had played it, but there was no doubt about its being fit for soldiers. He had heard his master sing it, hum it, many times. It had soothed his nerves when he was a sick puppy and it went with many things of the intimate life with his master. He remembered it when he had dozed by the fire and dreamed of chasing cats and barking at Brunet and being a faithful dog all around; he heard again a beloved voice hum it to him. Pitchoune whined and softly jumped down from his seat. He put his forepaws on Miss Redmond's lap. She stopped and caressed him, and he licked her hand.

"That is the first time I have seen that dog show a spark of human gratitude, Julia. He is probably begging you to open the door and let him take a run."

Indeed Pitchoune did go to the door and waited appealingly.

"I think you might trust him out. I think he is tamed," said the Marquise d'Esclignac. "He is a real little savage."

Miss Redmond opened the door and Pitchoune shot out. She watched him tear like mad across the terrace, and scuttle into the woods, as she thought, after a rabbit. He was the color of the fallen leaves and she lost sight of him in the brown and golden brush.

CHAPTER IX.

The Fortunes of War.

Sabron's departure had been delayed on account of a strike at the dockyards of Marseilles. He left Tarascon one lovely day toward the end of January and the old town with its sweetness and its sorrow, fell behind, as he rolled away to brighter suns. A friend from Paris took him to the port in his motor and there Sabron waited some forty-eight hours before he set sail. His boat lay out on the azure water, the brown rocks of the coast behind it. There was not a breeze to stir as he took the tug which was to convey him. He was inclined to dip his fingers in the indigo ocean, sure that he would find them blue. He climbed up the ladder alongside of the vessel, was welcomed by the captain, who knew him, and turned to go below, for he had been suffering from an attack of fever which now and then laid hold of him, ever since his campaign in Morocco.

Therefore, as he went into his cabin, which he did not leave until the steamer touched Algiers, he failed to see the baggage tender pull up and failed to see a sailor climb to the deck with a wet bedraggled thing in his hand that looked like an old fur cap except that it wriggled and was alive.

"This, mon commandant," said the sailor to the captain, "is the pluckiest little beast I ever saw."

He dropped a small terrier on the deck, who proceeded to shake himself vigorously and bark with apparent delight.

"No sooner had we pushed out from the quay than this little beggar sprang from the pier and began to swim after us. He was so funny that we let him swim for a bit and then we hauled him in. It is evidently a mascot, mon commandant, evidently a sailor dog who has run away to sea."

The captain looked with interest at Pitchoune, who engaged himself in making his toilet and biting after a flea or two which had not been drowned.

"We sailors," said the man saluting, "would like to keep him for luck, mon commandant."

"Take him down then," his superior officer ordered, "and don't let him up among the passengers."

* * * * * * *

It was a rough voyage. Sabron passed his time saying good-by to France and trying to keep his mind away from the Chateau d'Esclignac, which persisted in haunting his uneasy slumber. In a blaze of sunlight, Algiers, the white city, shone upon them on the morning of the third day and Sabron tried to take a more cheerful view of a soldier's life and fortunes.

He was a soldierly figure and a handsome one as he walked down the gangplank to the shore to be welcomed by fellow officers who were eager to see him, and presently was lost in the little crowd that streamed away from the docks into the white city.

CHAPTER X.

Together Again.

That night after dinner and a cigarette, he strode into the streets to distract his mind with the sight of the oriental city and to fill his ears with the eager cries of the crowd. The lamps flickered. The sky overhead was as blue nearly as in daytime. He walked leisurely toward the native quarter, jostled, as he passed, by men in their brilliant costumes and by a veiled woman or two.

He stopped indifferently before a little cafe, his eyes on a Turkish bazaar where velvets and scarfs were being sold at double their worth under the light of a flaming yellow lamp. As he stood so, his back to the cafe where a number of the ship's crew were drinking, he heard a short sharp sound that had a sweet familiarity about it and whose individuality made him start with surprise. He could not believe his ears. He heard the bark again and then he was sprung upon by a little body that ran out from between the legs of a sailor who sat drinking his coffee and liquor.

"Gracious heavens!" exclaimed Sabron, thinking that he must be the victim of a hashish dream. "Pitchoune!"

The dog fawned on him and whined, crouched at his feet whining—like a child. Sabron bent and fondled him. The sailor from the table called the dog imperatively, but Pitchoune would have died at his master's feet rather than return. If his throat could have uttered words he would have spoken, but his eyes spoke. They looked as though they were tearful.

"Pitchoune, mon vieux! No, it can't be Pitchoune. But it is Pitchoune!" And Sabron took him up in his arms. The dog tried to lick his face.

"Voyons," said the officer to the marine, who came rolling over to them, "where did you get this dog?"

The young man's voice was imperative and he fixed stern eyes on the sailor, who pulled his forelock and explained.

"He was following me," said Sabron, not without a slight catch in his voice. The body of Pitchoune quivered under his arm. "He is my dog. I think his manner proves it. If you have grown fond of him I am sorry for you, but I think you will have to give him up."

Sabron put his hand in his pocket and turned a little away to be free of the native crowd that, chattering and grinning, amused and curious and eager to participate in any distribution of coin, was gathering around him. He found two gold pieces which he put into the hand of the sailor.

"Thank you for taking care of him. I am at the Royal Hotel." He nodded, and with Pitchoune under his arm pushed his way through the crowd and out of the bazaar.

He could not interview the dog himself, although he listened, amused, to Pitchoune's own manner of speech. He spent the latter part of the evening composing a letter to the minister of war, and although it was short, it must have possessed certain evident and telling qualities, for before he left Algiers proper for the desert, Sabron received a telegram much to the point:

You may keep your dog. I congratulate you on such a faithful companion.

Gauge for Measuring Sootfall.

The Pittsburgher who resents the timeworn variations of the soft coal smoke gibes now has his chance to prove that they are unjustified, or remain forever silent. By a new invention it is at present possible to measure the sootfall of any city as accurately as its rain or snowfall may be measured. Already this soot gauge, tried out in England, has proved what the tourist long suspected, that London, with all its yellow fog, has far purer air than the North of England factory cities of Birmingham, Manchester and the like. Not only have Pittsburgh and other slandered American cities the opportunity to whiten their sooted reputations, but the manufacturer, too, may now establish accurately the exact proportion of his contribution to the civic soot; for the new device judges the quality as well as the amount of sootfall, and is quite capable of distinguishing between the factory, furnace and kitchen range.—Literary Digest.

The Boy Who Dreams.

It is a good thing for the farmer boy to have an imagination, says the Prairie Farmer. It is a good thing for him to "dream dreams and see visions." It takes a dreamer to see the transformation that intelligent effort will bring to pass on the old place. It takes a dreamer to see how much more desirable that place will be in ten years than a job in a dry goods store.—Emporia Gazette

To Remove Paint.

Equal parts of ammonia and turpentine will take paint out of clothing, no matter how hard or dry it is. Saturate spots two or three times, then wash in warm soapsuds.

POETRY OF THE CELT

FRENCH EXPERT TRACES ITS INFLUENCE IN LITERATURE.

Shows Possibility That the Institution of the Nomad Troubadour Had Its Origin in the Country of Wales.

Anatole le Braz of the University of Rennes, Brittany, in a lecture on the Celtic influence in literature, at the University of Cincinnati, distinguished between two classes of Celtic populations, those Celtic in origin, but with an intermingling of French and English blood, and those more purely Celtic. The second class, he said, is found in France, among the Bretons, and in England, among the Celts of Cornwall, the Welsh, and the Irish. To it we must look for any remains of the Celtic genius and for the means by which Celtic influence was brought to bear upon European literature. Ireland, which M. le Braz chose as his starting point, possessed, at the time of the Scandinavian invasion, an old civilization that had been little influenced by Rome or Germany. Christianity, however, left a profound imprint upon the Gaelic soul. It is in the religious domain that Ireland first influenced the European world. Her saints evangelized barbaric Europe; and it was at the time of her religious awakening that she produced her artists and philosophers. The influence of her epic poetry was no less felt than that of her evangelization.

The Celts of Cornwall and Wales, he continued, superior in culture at the time of the Saxon invasion, refused to be absorbed by their more savage conquerors. The two chief Celtic passions, love of country and love of independence, found expression in the legends of King Arthur, who, they believed, would reappear to free them from the Saxon yoke. Through poetry and music these legends were kept ever fresh in the Celtic mind. Music and song were an essential part of their education, and the bard was a privileged character among them, from the sixth century through the twelfth.

Gradually, as the Celts and Saxons united, the latter learned to appreciate the Celtic poetry, and the Celtic literary themes passed into Saxon possession. But, as the new social state evolved, formed of this alliance, the art of the bards ceased to be an official institution, and they were compelled to find a means of support. They became wandering singers, going to assemblies, feasts and abbeys.

"I should not be surprised," remarked M. le Braz, "if it should some day be discovered that the institution of the nomad troubadour, of the jongleur, so popular in Europe during the middle ages, had its first originators in the country of Wales." Through the nomad bard, then, Celtic poetry was disseminated, sung in the three languages—Celtic, Saxon, Roman.

Xerxes and the Hellespont.

We can imagine our sailors applying alliterative epithets to the Dardanelles when one of the weather interruptions occurs, remarks the London Chronicle. But we cannot imagine Admiral Carden doing that sort of thing officially, as Xerxes did when a storm wrecked his bridge of boats from Abydos to Sestos. Not content with having the engineers decapitated, he ordered the infliction of 300 lashes upon the strait and the letting down into it of a set of fetters. Herodotus discredits the story that Xerxes also sent irons to brand the strait. But the historian does give the non-Hellenic and blasphemous terms which the scourgers were ordered to use: "Thou bitter water, this is the penalty which our master inflicts upon thee because thou hast wronged him though he has never wronged thee. King Xerxes will cross thee, whether thou wilt or not; but thou deservest not sacrifice from any man, because thou art a treacherous river of salt water."

She Gently Swore.

One of the new skeleton-trimmed hats worn by women caused merriment in a New York subway train and cost one man the price of a new pair of eyeglasses. The wearer of the hat, a short, stylishly gowned, good looking young woman, was seated between two tall men, both of whom wore eyeglasses with a cord attached. Every time the woman fidgeted around the trimming would catch the strings attached to the eyeglasses of the two men. Suddenly one of the men started for the door as the guard called his station. When he arose he jerked the girl's hat almost off her head, and as the hatpins pulled her hair she gave a little cry of pain. The man confusedly murmured an apology, at the same time clutching at his glasses, which had been loosened by the concussion and which fell to the floor and were broken. The young man beat a retreat for the door, while the young woman adjusted her headgear and gently swore beneath her breath.

Mistaken Influence.

"Pop, why doesn't the anticruelty society get after Wall street?"

"Why should it?"

"Don't they have bull fights and bear pits there?"

Something of One.

"Is your son anything of a sprinter since he went to college?"

"Well, he holds the family record for running up a bill."

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Latest Gleanings From All Over the State.

TOLD IN SHORT PARAGRAPHS

Jacob L. Weitzel Dies; Shot Self. Mystic Circle Of State and N. J. Ends Sessions—Cattle Plague Near Corry.

The Grand Ruling of the Fraternal Mystic Circle, embracing Pennsylvania and New Jersey, adjourned at Allentown after installing these new officers: Grand ruler, S. L. Schroeder, Greencastle; vice-grand ruler, Henry S. Roth, Jr., Philadelphia; grand chaplain, Victor E. Grim, Allentown; grand recording secretary, E. S. Miller, Allentown; grand treasurer, C. F. Kuhns, Waynesboro; grand warden, J. H. Joeller, Altoona; grand marshal, Dr. A. F. G. Paetzel, Erie; grand guard, Mrs. Elizabeth Appel, Pittston; grand sentry, H. S. Thatcher, Lancaster.

In connection with the third State encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Reading, there was a parade of all the military organizations of the city. General John R. Brooke, U. S. A., retired, was a special guest of honor. At the convention of the order Adjutant General Tobias Wingard reported twenty-five posts in good standing. They have a membership of 3,000. The proposition to pension widows and orphans of foreigners was indorsed.

At public vendue conducted by Sheriff David Jones, at his office in the courthouse, West Chester, several properties went under the hammer, among them the famous Devon Inn, in Easton Township. The four-story building, containing more than 200 rooms, was sold for a debt of $108,153, and was knocked down to David C. Leech, the plaintiff in the execution, for $70,000. There are about fourteen acres of land in the tract.

Martha Schultz, the fifteen-year-old daughter of a well-to-do farmer, was attacked by two masked women near a coke plant in the outskirts of Connellsville. One of the women held Miss Schultz while the other pressed on each cheek the uncorked neck of a bottle filled with acid. Her face was badly burned. Several weeks ago Miss Schultz received a letter ordering her to place $1,000 and a gold watch in a secluded spot.

In his sermon on "Moral Cleansing" in the tabernacle at Chester, Rev. William Nicholson deplored the fact that Chester people could not be brought to a realization of their extreme need of salvation, declaring that his work had not only been denied the support it had received in other places, but had been subjected to ridicule, unjust criticism and condemnation from men and women who should have flocked to his aid.

Howard G. Dibble, head of the schools of Lambertville, N. J., was selected as the principal of the Harrisburg Central High School, to succeed the late Prof. W. S. Steele. He was the unanimous choice of the committee and was formerly head master at Staunton Military Academy, in Virginia, and had charge of schools in New England.

Seven cases of foot and mouth disease were discovered on the farm of Ernest Fitch, in Wayne Township, the entire herd will be destroyed by Federal and State officials. The cases were discovered by Dr. William Rosswell, local inspector for the State Live Stock Sanitary Board.

Jacob L. Weitzel, well-known Reading baseball promoter and former business man, died in St. Joseph's Hospital there, having been unconscious since Tuesday afternoon, when he was found by strollers in Mineral Spring Park, where he had attempted suicide by shooting.

The barn of Paul Unger, of Coopersburg, was burned at a loss of $1,500, and officers are looking for a tramp who is suspected because he became angry when Mrs. Unger offered him only cake and coffee when he demanded that a meal be cooked for him.

Despondent over the death of his wife, James Shaffer, fifty years old, of Allentown, slashed his wrists with a razor, and lost so much blood that his death is feared by the surgeons at the hospital.

Edward and Charles Uhler, in jail at Allentown, for looting a number of express offices in the Lehigh Valley, have applied for a pardon, being represented by State Senator Horace W. Schantz.

John Stiles, a page in the State House of Representative at Harrisburg who was accidentally shot by his father, Michael Stiles, at the family home in Cumbola, died in the Pottsville Hospital.

The farmers of Weisenberg Township, Lehigh county, met at Seipstown and organized a grange, the sixth for the county.

LOCALS

Mercury dropped from 94 to 68 following the shower, Tuesday afternoon. The precipitation was .08 of an inch.

Domer Ishler of Washington, D. C., is spending a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Ishler.

Boyd Magee left for Philadelphia on Wednesday morning but will return to Centre Hall by the latter part of the week.

Bradford & Son are finding an outlet for good hay and beginning of this week shipped out several car loads of timothy.

S. J. McClintic of Potters Mills was in town on Wednesday, and is looking fine after having undergone "repairs" for a period of five weeks.

Millheim will soon have a "jitney" service, according to the Journal. Autoists think there's money in hauling travelers to the adjoining towns for a nickel.

Forester Leonard Barnes has finished planting 25,000 pine trees on the State lands in Greens Valley. The trees cover an area of about thirty acres lying in the vicinity of Gentzel's Gap.

Franklin Moyer, tenant on the Kennedy farm west of Centre Hall, found business at the Reporter office Saturday afternoon. Mr. Moyer is one of the early farmers, and is itching to put corn into the ground.

Mr. and Mrs. William Keller, Miss Tillie Keller, Mrs. G. O. Benner and Mrs. D. W. Bradford attended one of the Varney lectures in Bellefonte, last week. The Varneys next "Welfare Week" will be held in Philipsburg.

The home talent play, "The High School Freshman," which the local young people rendered in Millheim Saturday evening, was a bitter disappointment from a financial standpoint. The small number present, however, showed their appreciation by hearty applause.

Mrs. Chas. D. Bartholomew and two daughters, Margaret and Elizabeth, are in Philadelphia where the children are undergoing examination in one of the city's hospitals. The former, it is thought, will have to undergo an operation for adenoids and the younger child will have her eyes treated.

While seated in a chair in front of the Centre Hall hotel, Monday evening, Charles E. Decker was suddenly seized with an attack of acute indigestion and fell unconscious to the pavement. He was taken into the hotel parlor and Dr. H. S. Braucht of Spring Mills summoned. It was some time until he revived sufficiently to be taken to his home, where he is slowly improving.

Rev. J. Homer Kerr, who preaches in the Presbyterian church next Sunday, was pastor of this church and that of Spring Mills from May 25th, 1885 to August 27, 1889. It was during his pastorate that the present Presbyterian church building was erected. The only other ex-pastor of this church now living is Mr. Kerr's immediate predecessor, the Rev. W. K. Foster, born and reared in this community, now pastor of the flourishing church of Jenkintown, near Philadelphia.

DEATHS.

Death claimed a noble christian woman when the soul of Mrs. Chestie Moyer, wife of William Moyer, took its flight to its Maker, Wednesday of last week, at her home in Loganton. Two years ago Mrs. Moyer sustained a paralytic stroke and since that time she had been practically helpless. Funeral services were held in the Reformed church at Rebersburg, Saturday afternoon and burial made at that place, Rev. A. G. Stauffer, assisted by the Lutheran and Evangelical ministers from Loganton, officiating.

Mrs. Moyer was the daughter of John and Susan Weaver and was born in Brush Valley seventy years ago. The greater part of her life was spent there. She was held in high esteem by her many friends and her passing away is deeply mourned. Besides her husband three children survive, namely, Charles, of Reading; Earl, of Loganton, and Mrs Maggie Frank, of Johnstown. One brother and one sister also survive: Daniel Weaver and Mrs. John Minnich, of Wolf's Store.

Mrs. Wesley Slagle died at her home in State College Friday morning from the effects of a paralytic stroke sustained Tuesday previous. She had just recovered from an illness with pneumonia. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon and burial made in the Pine Hall cemetery, Rev J. McHenry Riley, of the Methodist church, officiating. Surviving her are her husband and these children: Ira and David, State College; Irvin, Albert, William and Mary, at home; also three brothers, namely, Jesse, Altoona; John and Lemuel, State College.

James Miller, one of Miles township's oldest residents, died at his home in Smullton, Saturday, of old age, being in his eighty-first year. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon in the Lutheran church at Rebersburg and burial made at that place, Rev. J. L. Metzgar, officiating. Surviving him are his wife and the following children, namely, Elmer, near Rebersburg; Rev. Luther Miller, Maryland; Mrs. Anna Winkleblech, Renovo.

More Mountain Fires.

Monday morning fire broke out in Poe Valley and spread so rapidly that in a comparatively short time it covered two mountains and was four miles in length, extending from the Kuhn Lingle place to the new pike. Foresters Montgomery and Siggins of Potters Mills, on the west, Forester Meek, on the east, and Forester Warfield on the south, with a force of nearly a hundred men, fought the fire systematically and by Tuesday evening had it practically under control. The ground burned over was nearly all state land.

About a mile south of Boalsburg, on Bald Top mountain, Forester Ludwig, assisted by a number of State College students, fought a severe fire which burned over hundreds of acres. The rain on Tuesday afternoon aided materially in putting out the fire. Another fire of big dimensions raged in the barrens near State College and was fought by nearly all students.

Mr. and Mrs. James Tibbens of Clearfield spent Saturday and Sunday of last week at the home of the latter's brother, Robert W. Bloom, above Centre Hall.

Mrs. J. H. Meyer, the Reporter's faithful correspondent from Boalsburg, is spending a week among relatives and friends in Altoona, consequently her letter does not appear in this issue.

Mrs. S. A. Krape and daughter Alice returned home Saturday from Altoona where they spent a short time with Mrs. Krape's brother and sister, John F. Ziegler and Mrs. J. F. Smith.

George Long of Penns Cave, assisted by Cleve Gentzell, Monday morning began to paint the D. J. Meyer residence in Centre Hall. After that is completed, Prof. P. H. Meyer will have the same artists paint his home.

The dwelling house erected by the Zettle Brothers at Plessant Gap has been occupied since April first, although not completed Houses are in good demand at that point, in fact, the demand is not nearly supplied. The same conditions apply in Centre Hall.

Theodore Brown, who spent several weeks at the home of his brother, Edward Brown, to recuperate his health, returned to his home in Lewistown, Monday. He was accompanied by his brother and T. C. Bartges, making the trip in the latter's car.

Two births occurred in the borough within the past week: Merchant and Mrs. W. A. Odenkirk are rejoicing over the arrival of a daughter, which put in its appearance Thursday night, and Mr and Mrs. Elmer Runkle are parents of a son which arrived last week.

Prof. P. H. Meyer was an invited guest of the York Oratorio Society, at York, Tuesday night, at which time the classical oratorio, "Redemption," was produced. The Russian Symphony orchestra of Boston, one of the finest organizations in the country, assisted in the production.

Rev. Harry W. Buck of York spent a few days the latter part of last week at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Geary. Rev. Buck is a devotee of the rod and gun and never fails to put in use one or the other when on his vacation trips. Trout fishing engaged his attention while in Centre Hall.

Centre Hall lodge, I. O. O. F., was well represented at the anniversary at Bloomsburg, Friday, but did not participate in the parade. All spoke in the most glowing terms of the hospitality of the town's people, the decorations and the general excellence of the festivities. The following represented Centre Hall, the trip being made in automobiles: Mr. and Mrs L. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Homan, Mr. and Mrs T. L. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. George Heckman, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dutrow and son Roy, H. H. Mark, Ed. Crawford, Alfred Crawford, William Bradford, William Lucas, E. S. Ripka, Lanson Burris, Robert Meyer, Bruce Arney, T. L Bartges.

LOCALS

The fragrance of the blossoming peach and cherry trees is in the air.

Mrs. James Armstrong, one of Potters Mills aged ladies, is reported to be in very poor health.

Misses Nina Slick and Carrie Sweetwood spent Sunday at State College as guests of Mrs. H. J. Lambert.

The degree team of the Spring Mills lodge, I. O. O. F., will confer the second degree upon a class at Centre Hall on Saturday evening.

William McClenahan, who underwent a successful operation of the eye at the Wills Eye Hospital at Philadelphia, is expected home Saturday.

The Penn Carbonating Works are nearly enough completed to enable the proprietor to manufacture soft drinks, and last week the first consignment was shipped to the trade. The machinery is all new, modern, and well arranged. The quality of Mr. Clellan's product is no doubt of a grade that it will need to stand second to none.

B. H. Arney is preparing the foundation for a concrete walk to the front of his residence. It is reported a similar walk will also be constructed to the front of Grange Arcadia and the residence of Frederick K. Carter. When these links are completed there will be a stretch of concrete, stone and brick walks from the Diamond to the railroad station.

James Grove of Emporium, Kansas, is among friends in the east, and while in Centre Hall was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Krape. It is many years since Mr. Grove went west. He is a son of the late Jacob Grove, who died about two years ago in Kansas. Mr. Grove is giving his time to preaching the gospel, but is not identified with any particular denomination.

Old Fort lodge, F. & A. M., held an interesting gathering in their rooms on Monday evening, it being the regular monthly meeting. A number of visitors from Bellefonte and other places were present. A luncheon was served following the business session. The visitors present were: W. B. Rankin, John L Knisley, Joseph E. Ward, George M. Gramley, Charles F. Mensch, Harry P. Shaeffer, Arthur H. Sloop, Chas. H. Watson, W. Harrison Walker, Shamat S. Hazel, Lewis L Wallace, Chas. D. Casebeer, David L Chambers, David Miller, G. Willard Hall, George E. Rhoads, C. Y. Wagner, A. C. THE LUSE HYDRANT SOLD.

The Hertzler & Zook Company, at Belleville, the New Owners Who Will Manufacture It on a Large Scale.

What should have made and could have made Centre Hall famous was recently sold to the Hertzler & Zook Company, at Belleville, manufacturers of agricultural implements. Reference is made to the sale of the patent right of the Luse hydrant by Mrs. Martha Luse, executrix, to the firm named.

The Luse hydrant is the product of D. F. Luse, who spent many years in perfecting it. It is today a most substantial, simple, convenient hydrant, second in all respects to none. It has many superior points to other hydrants. From the point of durability, the easy manner in which it may be removed from the main pipe, it has no equal. Some of the Luse hydrants have been doing continuous and satisfactory service for a period of thirty years.

As above intimated the Reporter's chief regret is that local capital did not sieze the opportunity to put this commodity on the market on a large scale, and thus build up an industry that has long been dwarfed on account of the lack of capital and business capacity.

The Hartzler & Zook Company, at Belleville, who now own the exclusive right to manufacture the Luse IXL hydrant are prepared to manufacture on a large scale. Their plant is thoroughly equipped with modern machinery, guaranteeing that the hydrants built by them will be improved by being constructed with greater care and exactness.

The Belleville firm manufactures farm machinery extensively, among which are grain drills, feed mills, wood-saws, lime drills, stock troughs, and gasoline engines.

Their payroll now is large and their various products are shipped to all points of the compass. They will consequently almost instantly be ready to fill orders for the Luse IXL hydrants to their trade and greatly extend the territory in which the hydrant is a familiar figure in the hardware store, on the farm, and in the town home.

The manufacturers request that dealers who have been selling this hydrant write them for prices, etc.

Lightning Causes Loss.

Harry H. Cummings, tenant on his mother's farm, west of Old Fort, suffered loss from lightning on Tuesday afternoon. The bolt struck the gable of the barn and followed the outside until it reached the cow stable where it entered. In the stable were fourteen head of cattle, and when Mr. Cummings entered the stable all were lying prostrate from the effects of the lightning. One by one the animals struggled to their feet until all stood but three—a cow and two heifers. Investigation proved that these were dead. The loss is between $125 and $150. Mr. Cummings did not carry insurance. The building was not damaged to any extent.

Auction Sale at Meiss' Store

The last auction sale of odds and ends will be held at the Meiss store, Colyer, Saturday evening. Stock is being reduced to make room for carpenters.

PENN HALL

Mrs. Sarah Hartman visited at the home of H. B. Herring, on Sunday.

The stork visited at the home of William Slinkabine last week and left another little girl, which makes six girls and no boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Gross Shook and the former's mother visited at the home of the latter Mrs. Shook's sister, Mrs Irvin Weaver, at Salona.

Mrs. George Shook visited friends and relatives at Centre Hall over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs Lloyd Houser spent Sunday at the home of the former's parents.

Peter Auman and Charles Carter are painting George Shook's house. The color will be white trimmed with gray.

Samuel Hosterman visited his parents over Sunday.

Ralph Kramer visited his parents a few days last week and on Monday returned to Williamsport.

Luther Musser of Woodward spent Sunday at the home of Emanuel Krader.

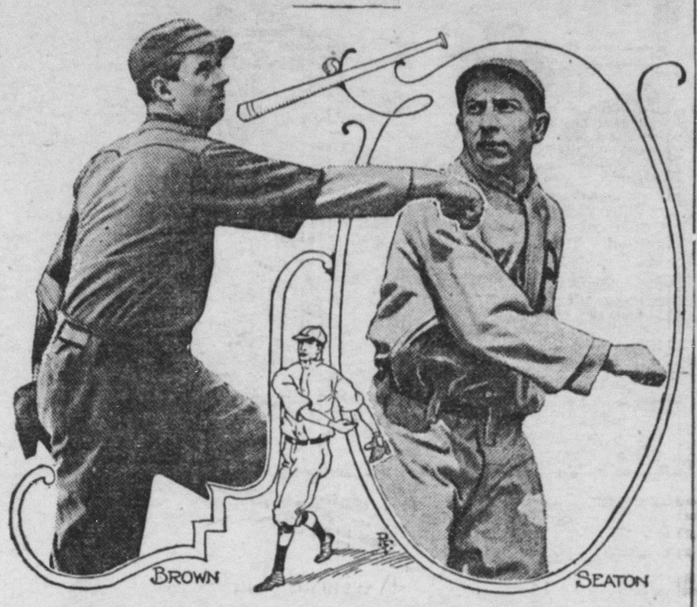
BRADFORD & SON, Centre Hall

MORDECAI BROWN DESCRIBES RECORD GAME



"I've played in and watched a good many ball games in my time," says Mordecai Brown, the noted pitcher, now with the Chicago Federals, "but the record game of them all was staged in St. Louis last season. I was working against Seaton. In the twelfth inning, with the score tied, Brooklyn came up and made seven runs. It got so bad that the last two men struck out on purpose to end the game before darkness, or we might never have retired the side.

"Then, with that seven runs handicap and Seaton pitching, we came in and made eight runs with two still on and only one out. We could have made three or four more, and I believe they would have done the same. Yet there are people who try to dope out this blooming game."

Twenty-four of the 330 Players Who Figured in War of 1902 Still Remain in the Big Arena.

Although only 24 of the 330 ball players who figured in the American and National league races of 1902, the last year of the American league baseball war, still remain in the big arena, a team composed of these veterans, all of whom have been in the game upward of 14 seasons, would be capable of holding its own, with any that might be selected today.

All of these players are far above the average in intelligence, which accounts for their remaining in the game so long, are excellent fielders, great batsmen, and with one or two exceptions, grand base runners. This all-star team would line up as follows:

Matthewson, Plang and Hess, pitchers; Bresnahan and Dooin, catchers; Lajoie, first base; Evers, second base; Wagner, shortstop; Wallace, third base; Callahan, left field; Leach, center field; Crawford, right field.

The manager for this team could be selected from among John McGraw, Fielder Jones, Clark Griffith, Hugh Jennings, Wilbert Robinson and Fred Clarke, as all of these former stars were in the game in 1902, Griffith and McGraw being pilots, as now.

JOHNSON PREDICTS HOT RACE

President of American League Tells of Loss to Athletics and Bracing of Other Clubs.

President Ban Johnson looks for a great race in the American league next season. Says Ban: "The addition of Eddie Collins to the White Sox, the loss of Mack's veteran pitchers and the retiring of Baker, if he really quits; the strengthening of the Red Sox and the general bracing of the clubs will make the race a hummer. The Athletics have been virtually shot to pieces. This will make every club in the league hustle, for a good bit of the fear which the old-timers caused in the younger players will be missing. Then the western clubs will be stronger this year. The race should keep the fans on their toes all of the time."

Worries of Boston Braves.

"The Cardinals and Cubs will be our worries in chief; we do not regard them lightly." This is the summing up of the 1915 National league proposition as expressed by "Rabbit" Maranville of the champion Boston Braves.

Speed McDonald's Hard Luck.

Speed McDonald, utility Los Angeles infielder, broke an ankle sliding to a base in a workout just a week before the Coast league season opened.

LIFE-LONG JOB FOR WAGNER

"Flying Dutchman" Can Play With Pittsburgh Pirates as Long as He Likes—His Career.

Honus Wagner can play with the Pittsburgh team as long as he likes. Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pirates, recently made this announcement. Barney says that when the big shortstop is too slow for a regular position he will be used for pinch hitting and when he is no longer able to deliver pinch hits he will be used as a coach for young players. Wagner is growing old, but he is far from being all in as a ball player. He should be good for two or three seasons more at the least. He is a well-preserved athlete and always takes good care of himself.

Wagner, familiarly known as the "Flying Dutchman," was born in Carnegie, Pa., February 24, 1874. He played professional ball for the first time in 1895 with the Steubenville (O.) team, and later in the same season joined the Warren team of the Iron and Oil league. The following year he joined the Paterson (N. J.) team, where he played two seasons. In 1897 he broke into the big show as a member of the Louisville National league team.

During the three years he was with Louisville he was shifted from first base to third base, and finally to the outfield. In 1900 the Louisville team was transferred to Pittsburgh. Honus has been a member of the Pirates ever since.

PLAYERS ARE POOR BARBERS

Stuffy McInnis Will Never Again Allow Harry Davis and Larry Lajoie to Shave Him.

Larry Lajoie is making good at second base for the Athletics, but he isn't qualifying as a barber at all. Stuffy McInnis will vouch for that.

On a recent barnstorming trip of the Athletics Stuffy needed a shave badly. The hotel barber shop was full. Lajoie and Harry Davis volunteeed as barbers.

Lajoie stuffed a towel under Stuffy's chin. Davis applied the lather. Then Harry shaved McInnis. The shave didn't meet with the approval of Larry. He insisted upon going over Stuffy's face again.

He used an upstroke where Davis had used downward strokes. Davis wasn't satisfied until he had turned the trick once more. McInnis was game and, in spite of the way his face smarted and burned, he stuck it out to the finish.

Two days later, however, McInnis wouldn't accept another shave from the Davis-Lajoie combination.

"Never again," said Stuffy. "I want to keep my face."

STREAK OF LIGHTNING

Shortstop Maranville Regarded as Wonder of Baseball.

He Is About the Size of a Boy, With Speed of a Jackrabbit, and a Mighty Strong Arm—Has Odd Way of Catching a Fly.

Rabbit Maranville, shortstop of the Boston Braves, is the lightning spark of this amazing team. He is a wonder of baseball, being the size of a boy with the speed of a jackrabbit and the arm of Moriarty.

When fans go out to see the Braves play they go chiefly to see Johnny Evers, the great trio of pitchers—and Maranville.

Chief among the attractions is the manner in which he catches a fly. He dashes after it and then stands looking up at it as it descends. His arms lie loosely at his sides. He doesn't set himself a particle. It nears him, faster and faster.

Just as it comes on a level with his head he puts his hands together at his waist and nonchalantly catches it. He is the only star in captivity who catches a ball in this remarkable manner.

Fans gasp when he performs the stunt. They are always looking for him to drop it—but he apparently never does.

Maranville gets a grounder unlike other shortstops. He gathers up the ball in a most unconcerned fashion and can whip it across at fearful speed. One has to wonder where he gets the strength. There is no jerk to his movement, no effort whatever.

Then, when he is at the bat. He has a short, heavy stick. This he holds in the middle so that about a foot and a half is left to crack the ball. And it's no infrequent thing to see him whale a double or a triple.

The lad has all sorts of pep and works like a whirlwind with Evers around second.

Nobody wanted this little fellow because he "wasn't big enough for fast company." George Stallings signed Maranville and said to him then: "You're just the man I want. My idea of a shortstop is a small man. He can get over the ground faster than a big man. Don't worry about your size, Maranville. Just cover the ground and I'll keep you with this big show."

And Maranville was relieved of the worry of stature and—did he make good?

Johnny Evers and Stallings claim that he is the greatest shortstop that ever played the game! Of course, that's a Boston claim but, truth to tell, Maranville played the position in a dazzling way during the Braves' thrilling rush to the front. All of which goes to show that a man who is fast, game, and a hitter can get along no matter if he is not higher than a top hat.

WASHINGTON SUFFERER IS GREATLY RELIEVED

William H. Lacy Says One Dose of Mayr Remedy Ended His Troubles.

William H. Lacy of Washington, D. C., for three years suffered from derangements of the stomach and digestive tract. He was threatened with an operation.

He tried Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. In a short time he declared he had been restored. He wrote:

"I have suffered three years every day with a miserable feeling and was treated by the best doctors, whom I know made some wonderful cures, but gave me no relief.

"Three weeks ago they sent for a surgeon to operate on me. I read of your treatment and took a bottle. Whatever there was the matter with me has disappeared and I feel as well as ever. They say I am a little aged; I am 63 years old. I feel as well as I ever did in my life."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.—Adv.

He Knew Daddy.

The eight-year-old son of a famous lawyer was one day taken by his governess to a court of law in which his father was expected to make a particularly brilliant speech.

"Mother, I heard father make a fine speech today," said the boy on his return home. "And what do you think? Father almost cried, and he made some of the jurymen cry, too!"

"And you, too?" asked his mother.

"Oh, no—he can't get over me!" replied the heir and pride of the family.

A Doubt.

Bob—So she's rejected you again?
Ned—Yes—worse luck!
Bob—Oh, I don't know!—Judge.

Doubtful.

"How is your mother, Tommie?"

"She's better, but not so better as she was yesterday."

WOULD HAVE MADE TRADE

Disgusted Drummer Was Willing to Accept Joking Offer if the Law Had Allowed It.

A traveling salesman for a Ganse-voort street wholesale grocery firm, recently back from a trip through the rough lands of eastern Pennsylvania, tells this possibly true tale:

"One day on my last trip I had a six-mile ride to make to the county seat, and the small village in which I was had only one horse that I could hire and no other form of conveyance. I may say that a friend had landed me in the town that morning from his car and I had sold goods enough to pay the expenses of the trip.

"Well, I got away on the sorriest specimen of a horse I ever straddled, and I was to send him back by mail carrier, though not as a parcel post package. It took me two hours to cover the distance—I was sorry enough I hadn't walked—and as I passed the county jail on my old bag of bones a face grinned at me from between the bars of a small square window. I was too sore to smile, but I nodded to the grin, and the prisoner called to me:

"'Say, mister,' he said, 'how'd you like to trade that critter for 30 days in jail?'

"Just then I would have been glad enough to have traded, but the law wouldn't let me, and I rode on."—New York Sun.

Dogs in Warfare.

The Belgian use of sheep dogs to seek out the wounded is a return to the methods of warfare of an earlier day. In the Scottish clan feuds, as well as in English fights with Scotland, both sides used dogs for that purpose, though generally it was with the idea of killing them off when found. Unwounded fugitives, too, were sought by the dogs, and both Wallace and Bruce are recorded to have had narrow escapes from English bloodhounds. And in Elizabeth's reign five hundred hounds figured as part of the army sent to settle an insurrection in Ireland.

Cheaper Plan.

"I see," said the man who reads, "that to bring sleep to insomnia victims an English woman has invented an apparatus to flow water or medicated liquids on the forehead gently until the desired result is attained. What do you think of that, Pat?"

"Sure, I think it would be cheaper t' turn the hose on 'em."

Of Course Not.

TAKE COMFORT IN TOBACCO

Good stories about smoking and smokers continue to fill the space in the British papers not occupied by news of "major" engagements

The following tribute has been paid to Gen. Sir Philip Chetwode by Sergt. A. Bowler of the Fifth Signal corps, R. E., who is at the front: "I have watched him calmly smoking a cigarette when shells have been dropping all over the place. I think that if all the German army were firing at him he would carry on as usual, smoking his cigarette and giving his orders as if he were at his club ordering a drink."

In mid-February German soldiers on the western frontier received daily two cigars and two cigarettes, or an equal amount of chewing tobacco, snuff or pipe tobacco.

Couldn't See Any Face.

An old friend, whose name I won't mention, told me this one: "I was born and brought up on a farm, and I had the habit of going around with my mouth wide open, especially if there was anything unusual going on. One day an uncle whom I had not seen for years paid us a visit.

"'Hullo, uncle!' said I, looking up at him with my mouth opened like a barn door.

"He looked at me for a moment without answering, and then said:

"'Close your mouth, sonny, so I can see who you are.'"

Rooms for Rent.

Even college professors furnish some of the humor of school life. It was the registrar of a large university who, to an inquiry for a suite of "large, light, airy rooms," answered:

"Why, I don't just recall any now; but I've got a lot of 'em in my head."

And a flustered professor told a class of young ladies, "You may have fifty minutes of the hour to tell me what you know on the subject, and I will take the remainnig ten and tell you what I know."

His Fitness.

"What's become of your assistant?" asked the newspaper man in the barber shop, about to get the once over.

"Oh, he's quit the barber game to become a newspaper man," replied the boss barber.

"What does he know about the newspaper game?"

"Well, he can handle the shears, all right."

Nothing makes a man so quickly forget that he has been jilted as the society of another woman.

WOMAN COULD NOT SIT UP

Now Does Her Own Work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.

Ironton, Ohio.—"I am enjoying better health now than I have for twelve years. When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could not sit up. I had female troubles and was very nervous. I used the remedies a year and I can do my work and for the last eight months I have worked for other women, too. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for I know I never would have been as well if I had not taken it and I recommend it to suffering women."

Daughter Helped Also.

"I gave it to my daughter when she was thirteen years old. She was in school and was a nervous wreck, and could not sleep nights. Now she looks so healthy that even the doctor speaks of it. You can publish this letter if you like."—Mrs. Rena Bowman, 161 S. 10th Street, Ironton, Ohio.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out and drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

JOKE WAS ON INVESTIGATOR

He Had An Idea It Was on Restaurant Proprietor, but It Turned Out Otherwise.

The late Norman B. Ream, the organizer of the steel trust and many other important corporations, once said to a New York reporter about a trust investigation:

"Maybe these investigations will have the same luck as the game warden.

"A game warden heard that a restaurant was serving a game out of season. He disguised himself with a false beard, visited the place and ordered a pheasant.

"The pheasant, delicately high like roquefort cheese, as well as all good pheasant should be, was served to the game warden, and he devoured it to the last morsel, at the same time inflicting severe punishment on a bottle of rare old Burgundy—for the state, of course, paid for all.

"At the end of his repast the game warden summoned the proprietor and said:

"'I arrest you, sir, in the name of the law!'

"The proprietor's mouth opened in astonishment. He swallowed two or three times, then he gasped:

"'Wh—what for?'

"'For serving me a pheasant out of season,' said the game warden.

"A look of relief appeared on the proprietor's face.

"'Oh,' he said, 'that wasn't pheasant. It was crow.'"

A Roland for an Oliver.

Manager—I say, can we get anything like a real doctor in this jay town to attend a sick actor?

Village Inhabitant—Sure. Just go to that corner grocery. You'll find a man there who's all right at curing hams.

CRIPPLED WITH
CURED BY YAGER'S LINIMENT

SOME TESTIMONY

"My wife was so crippled with Rheumatism that she could hardly walk. After trying everything else without getting any relief I was persuaded to try Yagers' Liniment. The first bottle acted like a charm and afforded immediate relief and after using 3 bottles she was entirely well, and doing her work with perfect ease and comfort.

"Not long since she had another attack in the shoulder, once more I used Yagers' Liniment with the same result. We are never without a bottle in the house. I recommend it most highly."

Torturing Twinges

Much so-called rheumatism is caused by weakened kidneys. When the kidneys fail to clear the blood of uric acid, the acid forms into crystals, like bits of broken glass in the muscles, joints and on the nerve casings. Doan's Kidney Pills have eased thousands of rheumatic cases, lumbago, sciatica, gravel, neuralgia and urinary disorders.

A Virginia Case

A. Umberger, Spiller St., Wytheville, Va., says: "Hard work and heavy lifting brought on kidney trouble. The pains in my back were so bad I could hardly straighten. Mornings, it was all I could do to get up. Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of the pains, strengthened my back and kidneys and fixed me up all right."

"The morality of too many governments seems as frankly selfish and as frankly unjust as the man Smithers.

"As Smithers, Havana in mouth, came out of an expensive restaurant and started to get into his automobile a creditor held him up.

"'I tell you what it is, Mr. Smithers,' said the creditor, 'you wouldn't go riding round in a fine automobile like that if you paid your debts.'

"'Ha,' said Smithers, 'quite right! My point of view exactly! Glad to know you're in agreement with me. The golf club, Alphonse.'"

Then Was the Time.

Dr. Winnington Ingram, the bishop of London, is possessed of a somewhat cynical wit. He was once engaged in conversation with a very bumptious man, who was boring him terribly.

"What a fine life a bishop's must be?" exclaimed the bore, enthusiastically. "I would give anything to change places with your lordship for just one hour to experience what it must be like."

"Ah," replied Doctor Ingram, fervently, "I wish you could this very moment."

How "Sam" Registered.

Not far from Lexington lives a young farmer, "Sam" Woolridge, who found occasion to stop at the Phoenix, in Lexington. Just before Mr. Woolridge registered, James B. Haggin of New York, owner of the beautiful Elmendorf stock farm, walked to the desk and wrote. "James B. Hagin and Valet, New York."

Mr. Woolridge was the next to register, and this is what he wrote: "Sam Woolridge and Valise, Versailles."

The Beady Vine.

Singing was just over in the kindergarten, and immediately a small hand flew up.

"What is it, Alice?" asked the teacher.

Knew Where He Was Headed.

The story is told of a very crusty, gouty old gentleman who lost his patience with his doctor, because he did not make enough fuss over the pain he suffered.

"Doctor," he cried out, twisting and turning because of the agony, "you don't understand! You don't seem to grasp the case! You talk as though there were nothing the matter with me, whereas, I assure you, I am enduring the torments of the lost!"

"What, already?" replied the doctor.

CHANGE IN GAME LAWS.

Deer Season Thrown Into December.—Wild Turkey Legal Game Again.

Governor Brumbaugh signed the Phipps bill, last week, creating a new schedule governing the hunting of game and wild animals in this state. The following seasons will hereafter be in force: For wild turkeys, ruffed grouse, quail, phessants, from October 15th to November 30th; rabbits, during November; bear, October 15th to December 15th; deer, December 1st to 15th.

The sale of elk, wild turkeys, doe and the like is prohibited. The raising of ferrets is not allowed except by a license. Farmers may kill rabbits on their own land when their crops are being destroyed. The killing of game is prohibited by any other means than by a gun.

Dixon's Health Talks.

This is the season when the amateur gardener's eyes are delighted by the rows of summer vegetables that are poking their green leaves above the warm earth. The season for raw foods has already arrived.

Lettuce, water-cress, radishes, parsley, cucumbers, leeks, berries and many other toothsome growing things burden the market stalls and tempt the house-wife after the winter menu of canned vegetables.

A certain per cent of raw foods is an excellent stimulant to the appetite and a wholesome change at this season of the year. Care should be exercised, however, that they are properly cleaned before being eaten. Often the laborers in the truck gardens and those who handle the truck before reaching the customer are careless in the use of dangerous fertilizers and some pick and prepare the vegetables for market who are also careless to a degree that is almost criminal.

All vegetables to be eaten raw and berries, even at the risk of slightly injuring their flavor, should be thoroughly washed before being eaten.

Gardens should be fertilized with care. No night soil should be used on truck gardens from which the produce may be served uncooked. Water cress from polluted streams often produce epidemics of typhoid fever. Bananas should be thoroughly washed as soon as they come into the hands of the consumer, so that the dirt taken on during transportation will not be conveyed to other edibles.

LOCALS

Mrs. George Shock of Penn Hall spent Sunday with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcellus Sankey are rejoicing over the arrival of a son at their home in Potters Mills.

The M. E. church has announced Sunday evening, June 13th, as the time for its Children's Day services.

If you can't do more for the community than swat a fly, that will be something and much more than some people right here are doing.

Mrs. Rebecca Murray is having a coping built three or four feet to the south of her residence with a view of using the space inclosed for a flower bed.

F. S. Ulrich of Millheim has moved with his family to Millville where he accepted a position with Harry Herr, the former Millheim clothing merchant.

Seven fine fallow deer were released in the mountains in Blair county, last week. They were the first consignment from the state game commission for the stocking of the wilds in various sections.

Mrs. L. L. Smith spent a few days following the Odd Fellows anniversary celebration, at Bloomsburg, with her daughter, Miss Ruth Smith, who is a student at the Normal school at that place.

A number of State College students are already looking around for positions on the farm during the vacation months. The greatest number are students in the dairy school who are desirous of securing some practical knowledge in connection with the theoretical end.

The Zettle Brothers, who operate the Centre Hall planing mill, are doing a nice business at Pleasant Gap, at which place they opened a lumber yard. Of course the mill work is done at the Centre Hall plant, but much material sold and handled by them never reaches the local plant.

The local baseball club, in rendering their play, "The High School Freshman," Thursday night, realized a little over $48.00. The parts in the cast were well assigned and everyone did his part well. Boyd A. Magee pleased the large audience with several excellent renditions on the piano.

C. P. Long and a number of assistants have completed preliminary work on the proposed State road from Penn township to Centre Hall. All loose stones have been raked off and the road otherwise put in shape for the state engineers. It is not definitely known when the real improvements will begin.

Perry Krise will make sale of his hotel furniture on Saturday, at Spring Mills, and quit the business. He has not decided yet where he will move. The hotel has been leased by A. W. Rockenbrod of Laureiton and he will take charge as soon as the transfer of the liquor license is made. It will be remembered that the Spring Mills hotel was the only place in the county whose license was held up by Judge Orvis.

The Aaronsburg school house, recently partially destroyed by fire, will be razed and a new structure built, says the Journal. The Haines township school board at a meeting on Saturday evening decided to raze the school building and build a new and modern school building two stories high, with four rooms. The board is as yet undecided whether they will build entirely of wood or whether they will encase the building with brick. If a suitable location, away from Main street, can be procured the building will not be built on the present school site.

LESSON OF LOCAL OPTION.

This is neither the time nor the place to dwell on "I-told-you-so," yet that is the compelling, emphatic lesson that stands out boldest from the wreckage of the local option bill fight, a disaster that invokes mourning throughout a large body of Pennsylvanians who still believe in home rule, and the extirpation of special privilege from the seats of government.

The explanation of the defeat of the bill is simple: The Penrose machine made good its bargain with the liquor interests. And there was never a moment since the returns where counted last November that the result of that compact was in doubt.

In the defeat of the bill, history was but repeating itself. The Penrose machine needed a Moses to lead it out of the wilderness. To finance the procession, vast sums of money were needed. The liquor interests stood ready to deliver. Their price was death to hostile legislation; the bargain was struck and the goods were delivered Wednesday.

Predictions were made during the fall campaign, that Dr. Brumbaugh's pledges for local option were futile. There was a practical foresight that he would never get a bill to sign. The gang with its unconscionable bargain with the booze crowd would see and naturally did see to that.

It was of small matter to the Gang how much its candidates talked local option. In fact they preferred that kind of a campaign. To their minds it was a snare to the church and other folk and it meant votes. It had been tried before with gratifying results and why not again? But all the while the Gang was seeing to it that the Legislature was servile.

It is doubtful if any party sought to make such a catspaw of its Governor as the Gang did in this local option issue from the start. In the session of 1913, when the campaign for local option was neither so strenuous nor spectacular, the "drys" garnered 5 more votes than did the Governor, and in 1911 when comparatively only a pretense of a fight was made the local optionists polled only two less votes than Wednesday.

Dr. Brumbaugh, it is hoped, sees now that the only way to free Pennsylvania of debasing government and the special privilege taint is to smash the Penrose-machine. And that must be the Governor's job for the remainder of his term. His fight for local option rallied to his standard a great army of sincere enthusiasts who now look to him to grapple with the influences which defied him.

The die has been cast. The fight has reached the stage where there can be no turning back. A large number who are eager to support his administration if he but gives them a chance, expect him to fight back.

And if he does fight back, consecrated to the solemn task of driving Penroseism from Pennsylvania, showing neither fear nor favor to any man, that great army of Pennsylvanias who cherish good government more than partisanship will support him cheerfully.—Harrisburg Patriot.

You'll Want New Furniture This Spring.

We anticipated a big demand for furniture for all parts of the house this spring and we have prepared to suit all tastes with the best and most complete line of first-class goods. Our store is full from beginning to end and you are invited to give us a call and make your selection.

BEDROOM SUITS, PARLOR FURNITURE, KITCHEN CABINETS, BUFFETS, DAVENPORTS, IRON and BRASS BEDS, HALL CLOCKS, LIBRARY TABLES, and an endless array of CHAIRS, ROCKERS and other furniture.

You Can Do Best Here in Carpet.

Many pretty patterns in Brussels and Ingrain Carpets. Standard Rugs, in beautiful designs. Compare our prices with others selling same quality and you will see that we save you money.

PAINT AND LINSEED OIL.

Don't forget that we have a big line of the well-known Sherwin-Williams Paint---the kind that gives good service at low cost. If you intend "painting up" this spring consult us first about the material.
